THE NEW MIDDLE AGE

Their parents may think that retirement age started at about age 60, but Baby Boomers have a different take on aging. In fact, most Boomers consider middle age to last until about 70. Some even think that middle age doesn't end until they have entered the eighth decade of their lives. Those born between 1945 and 1963, sometimes referred to as the "luckiest generation," are largely reported to have assessed their lives in their 60s and say that it was nowhere near as bad as they once thought it would be. It certainly looks like few are showing signs of slowing down. Life also seems to be fuller when there is more time to spend with their families and travel.

All levels of care, from assisted living to memory support and state-licensed nursing care, are just a call away at WESLEY WOODS OF NEWNAN. We offer active, involved retirees a lovely apartment home or cottage, along with convenient services, chef-prepared meals, engaging neighbors, and all of the charm of a friendly neighborhood. For more information, please call WESLEY WOODS OF NEWNAN at 770-683-6833 or visit us at 2280 North Highway 29. View Retirement from a New Perspective.

P.S. Baby Boomers say that they do not (won't) feel that they are "old" until they reach age 70.
